

Show case

Is it really a year since last year's record temperatures? It made for a sunny trail, a blaze of glory for artists but ended in a real blaze on Wanstead Flats. The fire was ferocious and destructive. But nature has regenerated. Just like the arts trail which starts anew every year. We get an exciting new crop of artists and venues who bring vibrancy and originality. They are warmly welcomed. Then there are our established artists who surprise and delight us with new work each year. Thanks to all.

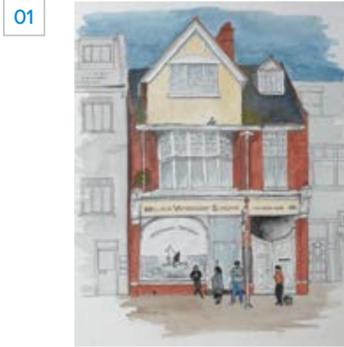

Our thanks to all the artists, venues, contributors and helpers who make Leytonstone Arts Trail possible.

Plenty of things happen in a year: artists move on from E11; people take a break from creating artworks; and, sadly, we lose people too. The Leytonstone Arts Trail and the local arts collective Creative Bloc lost a special person. One of our founding members Elliott Ashton passed away this year.

Elliott was responsible for curating many shows in the Stone Space, Wild Goose Bakery and the Fill the Gap Gallery. His particular passion was for Star Wars. Who can forget his Star Walls exhibitions? He secured a blue plaque for Stuart Freeborn (Star Wars make-up and effects artist) who was born on Grove Green Road. Setting up Creative Bloc was a real contribution to the recent arts scene in Leytonstone enabling artists to network and support each other. We miss Elliott but his legacy lives on.

Here's hoping for sunny July days to wander the trail. Enjoy!

Let's fill Leytonstone with art

It is a Leytonstone Arts Trail tradition to invite everyone to participate by putting their own artistic creations into their windows and gardens. How to do it? It's easy! You may have a favourite photograph. Perhaps you are a doodler. Do you attend an evening class and would like to show us the results? Or is there a stack of children's art sitting under a fridge magnet in your kitchen? Or you just dream up something by July and put it on display for us to see through the summer? Get thinking about how you can help brighten up the streets of Leytonstone. We've had photos, paintings, drawings, collages, sculpture, pottery, embroidery, knitting and some whacky 3D sculptures in people's front gardens; it never ceases to amaze us how creative the people in Leytonstone are! Whatever your inspiration – join in the fun! Let's make Leytonstone one big gallery!
